Message to the 5th European Congress of Actuaries

"Managing uncertainty in a changing world – Assessing risks sustainably for the well-being of society", a challenging and timely theme for this year's Conference to address!

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the President of the ISoA for his commitment and accomplishments as President of the Actuarial Association of Europe. For the first time you have a triannual development plan, an innovative congress and have strengthened the relationship with stakeholders.

The role and support that the actuarial profession can provide to Government, policy elaboration, and business in evaluating and quantifying risk is precious. Actuaries play a crucial role in managing and mitigating risks within the public sector. Your expertise in analyzing and assessing financial risks is invaluable in ensuring the stability and sustainability of government programs and policies by quantifying those risks, government actuaries can assist in designing appropriate risk management strategies.

My very best wishes for a fruitful and productive Congress.

Marina Calderone

(Minister of Labour and Social Policies)
